

Advisors play a critical role in the success of their students and I believe that students who have quality faculty advisors are much more likely to have successful college careers. The relationships I build with my students not only involve me serving as an information conduit, but more importantly, it consists of me being an avid listener and a source of reassurance and stability. Besides being a good listener, my students know that I am one of their biggest champions and that I am here to help them achieve their goals as well as encourage them to reach for a little more than they thought possible.

Dr. Adam J. Davis

College of Agriculture and Environmental Sciences

2002-2003 Outstanding Undergraduate Academic Advisor/Mentor

Tenure-track category