Ted Barco, Director of the Student Veterans Resource Center spoke to the Council about the goals of his office and the advisor’s role in helping military veterans be successful students at UGA. Based on survey responses, veterans indicated that the staff at UGA could be more attuned to their needs and more helpful in providing services for their transition. One of the main obstacles that veteran students face is completing their programs of study before their financial aid runs out. Mr. Barco asks that advisors provide all remaining requirements and an expected timeline for completion when advising students who are veterans. Jason Emond stated that students may be able to get up to four hours of course credit for their military experience and suggested contacting Audrey Shinner in the Registrar’s Office who can assist with questions regarding veteran’s benefits.

Sylvia Hutchinson, Director of Academic Partnerships and Initiatives, discussed her efforts to spotlight learning outside the classroom at UGA. Dr. Hutchinson’s goal is to compile a list of all of the student organizations on campus and make this list available on an easily accessible platform for advisors and students. Additionally, Dr. Hutchinson would like to create new organizations where there appears to be a gap in support. Advisors are asked to contact her with any current student organizations they may know of that she can add to her list or any ideas for new organizations. Dr. Hutchinson’s phone number is (706) 338-7698, and her email address is smchutch@uga.edu.

Tracy Giese of the Office of the Vice President for Instruction presented the new summer school website, summer.uga.edu, to the Council. The website has information regarding courses, schedules of each of the summer school sessions, cost, how to apply, and registration dates. Tracy provided bookmarks to each school and college to use as promotional materials during advising. If additional bookmarks are needed, please contact Tracy through email at summer@uga.edu.

Anna Heirs provided an update on the progress of the NACADA Drive-In Conference. The conference will take place on Friday, May 16, 2014, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Georgia Center. The keynote speaker will be Dr. Ruth Darling from the University of Tennessee. Dr. Laura Jolly will moderate a plenary session topic regarding initiatives of the Complete College Georgia program. A conference logo, PDF handout, Facebook page and registration site have been created. The conference information has been posted on the UGA OVPI website and the NACADA website, and announcements have been distributed to Georgia NACADA members and 80 key advising/student service administrators throughout the University.
The upcoming transition to the new Banner system was discussed. All students registering for summer classes will be cleared for registration in IMS. Advisors were asked to clear students for fall registration in IMS until March 14, 2014. At that time, the Banner team will move the data from IMS to Banner. This process will take a few weeks. During this transition time, advisors are asked to keep a list of the students they advise for fall registration. Once Banner opens, advisors can clear the students that were advised after March 14. The Banner team is working on granting access to Banner for every advisor and creating training information. Advisors will have access to training sessions and materials before students register for fall semester. Effective with the roll-out of Banner, Honors courses will no longer be restricted as POH/Permission of Honors. This means that Honors students will not be required to be placed on access lists for these courses, as was previously the case. They will be able to drop and add Honors courses to their schedule during the registration period without obtaining prior approval. Fall 2014 registration for Honors courses will continue to be restricted to students in the Honors Program and will now be open on a first come, first served basis. Questions regarding the transition to Banner can be sent to currsys@uga.edu, connectuga@uga.edu or Fiona Liken at fliken@uga.edu.
